PREFACE

The Inventory of Federal Archives in the States is one of the products of the work of the Survey of Federal Archives, which operated as a nation-wide project of the Works Progress Administration from January 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937, and has been continued since that date as a unit of the Historical Records Survey, also operating as a nation-wide project of the Works Progress Administration, and a group of state or local projects of that Administration and of the Work Projects Administration.

The plan for the organization of the Inventory is as follows: Series I consists of reports on the administration of the Survey, acknowledgments, and general discussions of the location, condition, and content of federal archives in the states. Succeeding series contain the detailed information secured by workers of the Survey, in inventory form, a separate series number being assigned to each of the executive departments (except the Department of State) and other major units of the Federal Government. Within each series No. 1 is a general introduction to the field organization and records of the governmental agency concerned; the succeeding numbers contain the inventory proper, separate numbers being assigned to each state in alphabetical order. Thus, in each series, the inventory for Alabama is No. 2, that for Arizona No. 3, that for Arkansas No. 4, etc.

For each local office information regarding each series, or unit of related records, is presented in the following order: title, inclusive dates ("to date" indicating an open file at the time the information was secured), general description of informational content, description of the system of filing or indexing (if any), a statement of frequency and purpose of use, form of the record itself (bound volumes, sheets in folders, etc.), linear footage, description of the containers, physical condition of the records (not stated if satisfactory), location by room number or other identifying information, and finally, the number of the Form 58SA on which this information was originally recorded by a Survey worker and from which it was abstracted for the Inventory. This form is on file in The National Archives. When it contains substantial information on addenda sheets which has not been included in the mimeographed abstract, indication of this is given by use of the reference "See addenda."

In North Carolina the work of the Survey was under the direction of Dr. C. C. Crittenden, Regional Director, with Miss Mattie Erma Edwards as assistant, from its inception until June 1937. Since that time it has been under the supervision of Miss Emily Bridgers. This Inventory of the records of the Federal Courts in North Carolina was prepared in the Raleigh office of the Survey and was edited before final typing by Dr. Richard R. Stenberg of the Washington office.

INTRODUCTION

1790 - 1861

North Carolina ratified the Federal Constitution in November 1789 and in 1790 provisions of the Judicial Act of 1789 were extended to the state. Under an act approved June 4, 1790,¹ a new Federal judicial district was created, to be known as the North Carolina District. A district court therein was to consist of one judge who should reside in the district and hold annually four sessions of the court at New Bern, records of which should be kept by a clerk at New Bern. The district was to be annexed to the Southern Circuit and two sessions of the circuit court were to be held annually at New Bern, two justices of the Supreme Court of the United States and the district judge presiding.

A United States attorney, a United States marshal, and a clerk of court were appointed for the new district.

The first session of the circuit court was called Tuesday, November 8, 1791, but since the presence of one of the justices of the Supreme Court was necessary to constitute the circuit court and such a justice was not present, an adjournment was taken to Thursday, November 10. On that day the first Federal grand jury in North Carolina was impaneled. After the June 1793 session, Congress ordered the court to be moved to Wake Court House,² the seat of Wake County, where the November 1793 session was held. Circuit court was then by Congressional authority³ moved to Raleigh, where, except during the War Between the States, sessions met continuously for the District of North Carolina until 1872, when the state was divided into Eastern and Western Districts and additional terms of the circuit court were established in the Western District.

Sessions of the district court for the North Carolina District were held in New Bern, only, until 1792, when, by an act approved April 13,⁴ Congress provided for sessions of the district court at New Bern, Wilmington, and Edenton in rotation, beginning at New Bern. Two years later, by act of Congress, the state was divided into three definite districts,⁵ as follows: the District of Wilmington, to include all the counties of the state districts of Morgan, Salisbury, Fayetteville, and Wilmington;⁶ the District of New Bern, to include all the counties of the state districts of Hillsborough, Halifax, and New Bern; and the District of Edenton, to include all the counties of the state district of Edenton. District court met as before at Wilmington, New Bern, and Edenton, and dockets and records of the court were kept at each place by the district clerk. Suits and all other proceedings originating in the respective districts were returnable, and records in each were kept, within the district where each commenced. This act was repealed in 1797, however, when Congress ordered sessions to be held only at New Bern, all cases pending in Wilmington and Edenton to be continued to the next court at New Bern, and all dockets and records of the several district courts to be moved to New Bern.⁷

Under the court reorganization act approved February 13, 1801, when the United States was divided into six circuits, the District of North Carolina was included with South Carolina and Georgia in the Fifth Circuit.⁸ Three circuit judges, one of whom was to be commissioned as chief judge, were to constitute the Fifth Circuit Court which was to meet twice annually in Raleigh. Records were to be kept in Raleigh by a clerk appointed by the court. The District of North Carolina was to be divided into three districts, as follows: the District of Albemarle, to consist of the state districts of Edenton and Halifax;⁹ the District of Pamlico, to consist of the state districts of New Bern and Hillsborough, together with all that part of the state district of Wilmington which was situated to the northward and eastward of New River; and the District of Cape Fear,¹⁰ to consist of the remaining part of the District of North Carolina. Court was to be held by the district judge three times annually at Edenton, New Bern, and Wilmington. Records were to be kept at each court seat by resident clerks appointed by the court. The marshal and the attorney for the District of North Carolina were to continue in office.

The above act was repealed March 8, 1802,¹¹ but the districts were re-established in April of that year, and provision was again made for the appointment of clerks for these districts, who were to reside and keep the records at the court seats to which they belonged.¹² A resident clerk was not established at Wilmington until about 1818. North Carolina was included with Virginia in the Fifth Circuit, court to consist of the chief justice of the Supreme Court and the district judge. Under this law Chief Justice John Marshall held two sessions of the court annually in Raleigh from the November term of 1802 to 1835.

After February 1812, the district court met twice yearly, instead of thrice, in each district.¹³

Although North Carolina was included with Maryland, Delaware, and Virginia in the Fourth Circuit in 1862,¹⁴ sessions of the Federal district courts were not held in North Carolina during the War Between the States. Under the act passed by the Provisional Congress for the establishment of courts of the Confederate States of America,¹⁵ Asa Biggs was appointed judge of the Confederate district court in North Carolina and took the oath of office on May 27, 1862, before Judge R. R. Heath of the Superior Court Bench of North Carolina. Judge Biggs had held the position of judge of the United States district court in North Carolina from 1858 until his resignation on April 23, 1861, just prior to the secession of North Carolina from the Union on May 20, 1861. As judge of the Confederate district court he had authority to take over all papers of the Federal court and to appoint the times and places for holding court. He held several sessions, notably at Goldsboro, New Bern, Wilmington, and Salisbury. When the inventory was taken a few Confederate court records were located at New Bern and at Wilmington.

The Confederate judiciary was never fully organized in North Carolina, however, and owing to the failure of the Confederacy to organize a Supreme Court very little attention was paid to the Confederate district courts. In a study of the Confederate courts¹⁶ Dr. J. G. de Roulhac Hamilton notes that the Confederate district courts "had no final jurisdiction under the Constitution and laws, and at best had only concurrent jurisdiction with the state courts over which they had no authority, appellate or otherwise. In most of the districts they scarcely functioned at all, and since their decisions were only scatteringly published in the newspapers, little was known of them at the time and far less today."

At the same time the state courts were particularly active. In many cases in which they claimed concurrent jurisdiction, they really exercised final jurisdiction as well, and in the absence of a Confederate Supreme Court, decisions of the State Supreme Court on constitutional questions could not be reviewed. As a result, a conflict developed almost immediately between the state courts and Confederate authorities. It was not until June 1864 that the State Supreme Court finally accepted the military power of the Confederate government and resistance from the state courts ceased.

Of the seceding states North Carolina was one of the first in which the Federal courts were reorganized. In May 1865 President Johnson by proclamation¹⁷ appointed William W. Holden provisional governor of North Carolina, with authority to prescribe rules and regulations for convening a convention with the view of restoring the state to its constitutional relations with the Federal Government. Federal officers were instructed to move to set up Federal agencies in the state. The district judge was instructed to proceed to hold courts within the state in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress. The Attorney General was directed to instruct the proper officers to "libel, and bring to judgment, confiscation, and sale, property subject to confiscation," and to enforce the administration of justice in the state in all matters within the cognizance and jurisdiction of the Federal courts.

President Johnson's first appointee for district judge could not take the oath of office required by law. He consequently resigned. A second appointee was confirmed by the Senate on January 22, 1866. A United States attorney and a United States marshal were appointed and sessions of the Federal district courts were resumed. Times and places for the year 1866 were designated by the district judge. Thereafter court met as previously stipulated by Congress.

The first session of the circuit court convening in the South since the beginning of the war was held at Raleigh in June 1867. In a redistribution of districts in 1866, the districts of North Carolina, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, and South Carolina had been placed in the Fourth Circuit,¹⁸ but Chief Justice Chase, assigned to the Fourth Circuit, had refused to come into North Carolina until the military power had been removed and the civil power entirely restored. Under the Reconstruction Act of March 2, 1867, North Carolina and South Carolina were constituted the second military district; although General Sickles, in command, continued the civil government of the state and directed that it should be obeyed, he declared it provisional only. When Chief Justice Chase finally came to Raleigh for the June term of 1867 he assumed the attitude that, while the military authorities still had authority to preserve peace and order, this military authority did not extend in any respect to the courts of the United States. Although General Sickles did not concur in this view, President Johnson sustained the court.¹⁹

The state was readmitted to representation in Congress on June 25, 1868.

Prior to the War Between the States the business of the Federal courts in North Carolina was small in volume; a few criminal prosecutions, some violations of the postal laws, counterfeiting cases, some admiralty causes at Wilmington and New Bern, and some prize cases at Wilmington during the War of 1812 constituted their chief work. Among the outstanding cases was that of Doe on Demise of Coventry v. Davie, which involved the title to lands claimed by the heirs of the Earl of Granville and in which judgment went against the plaintiff. Also notable were the actions in 1833 growing out of claims for certain valuable bodies of land in the mountain counties.

19. For a detailed discussion of the conflict between the civil and military authority in North Carolina in the reconstruction period see J. G. de Roulhac Hamilton, Reconstruction in North Carolina (New York, 1914).

These latter claims involved the relations of North Carolina, first as a separate sovereignty and subsequently as a part of the United States, with the Cherokee Indians.

After the war disturbances arising therefrom, the establishment of national banks, passage of the bankruptcy act, enforcement of the internal revenue laws, and regulation of interstate commerce brought an increasing number of cases before the Federal courts. Congress consequently in 1872, by an act approved June 4, divided North Carolina into Eastern and Western Districts.²⁰

The Eastern District was to consist of counties not named in the Western District.²¹ Terms of the circuit and district courts were to be held as heretofore in the Eastern District, in which, under an act approved July 1, 1870, the district court for the Albemarle District had been transferred from Edenton to Elizabeth City.²² Except as noted below, cases for the Western District still pending in the old District of North Carolina were not to be transferred from the Eastern District except at the request of the parties concerned. Original papers and copies of all orders in cases so transferred were to be forwarded to the proper clerk. The district attorney of the Western District was to designate the court to which suits or proceedings in which the United States was plaintiff were to be removed, the plaintiff or his attorney, all other suits.

Suits and proceedings pending in the Cape Fear District Court at Salisbury,²³ however, with all original papers therein, were to be transferred to a special term of the district court for the Western District at Salisbury, which should begin on the second Monday in August 1872. All suits and proceedings not then finally disposed of were to be transferred with original papers to the district courts of the Western District at Greensboro or Statesville, as the judge should order. The district clerk at Greensboro was to act as clerk at the special court at Salisbury.

Suits and proceedings pending at the late term of the district court for the Cape Fear District at Marion beginning on the third Monday of August 1871²⁴ and not then finally disposed of were to be transferred with original papers therein to a special term at Asheville beginning the third Monday in August 1872, with further continuance to the docket at Asheville. The clerk at Asheville was to act as clerk for the special term.

District courts for the Western District were to meet twice yearly at Statesville, Asheville, and Greensboro. Sessions of the circuit court for the Western District were to be held at the times and places fixed for sessions of the district court. A judge and an attorney were appointed for the district, and the circuit and district judges appointed three clerks, each of whom acted as clerk of both the circuit and district courts for the Western District, one each residing and keeping office at Statesville, Asheville, and Greensboro, which latter was the court seat of the new district. Under the direction of the district judge, these clerks were authorized to make transcripts of matters in records of the Eastern District relating to liens upon or titles to real estate situated in the Western District. These transcripts, when certified by the clerk who made them, could be used equally with the originals as evidence in courts and other places. Provision for the appointment of a marshal for the district was made by an act approved June 22, 1874.²⁵

21. The Western District was composed of all counties west of, and including, the counties of Person, Orange, Chatham, Moore, and Richmond, and all territory embraced therein which should thereafter be erected into new counties. Avery County was formed in 1911 from parts of Caldwell, Mitchell, and Watauga Counties.

From 1872 to 1911 additional sessions of the circuit and district courts for the Western District were provided for as follows:

At Charlotte, two sessions yearly, under an act approved June 19, 1878.²⁶ The clerk of court at Statesville was clerk of both courts at Charlotte.

At Wilkesboro, two sessions yearly, under an act approved February 23, 1903.²⁷ The clerk of the circuit and district courts at Statesville acted through a resident deputy as clerk of both courts at Wilkesboro. In 1904 Congress provided for a resident clerk to keep the records of both courts at Wilkesboro.²⁸

At Salisbury, two sessions yearly, under an act approved January 31, 1908.²⁹ The clerk of the circuit and district courts at Statesville was clerk of both courts at Salisbury.

In the Eastern District the following changes were made from 1872 to 1911:

In 1887, by an act approved February 17, provision was made for terms of the circuit court for the Eastern District twice yearly at Wilmington at times fixed by law for holding the district court.³⁰ The clerk at Raleigh was responsible for the records, the clerk of the district court at Wilmington acting as deputy clerk of the circuit court at Wilmington.

In 1894, under an act effective on October 15, the counties of Person, Durham, Chatham, Moore, and Richmond were transferred from the Western District to the Eastern District.³¹ Cases and proceedings pending in courts of the Western District against parties residing in one of the counties so transferred were, together with all papers and copies of all record entries, upon application of either party, transferred to the new court for the Eastern District at Raleigh. Thereafter, until 1912, two sessions yearly of the district court for the Eastern District were held at Raleigh on the dates set for meetings of the circuit court, one clerk serving both courts.

In 1900, by an act approved June 6, two sessions yearly of the circuit court for the Eastern District were provided for New Bern and Elizabeth City at times fixed for holding terms of the district court.³² Thereafter, until 1912, terms of the circuit court for the Eastern District were held at times and places fixed for sessions of the district court for the Eastern District.

In 1902, under an act approved April 15,³³ besides the clerk at Raleigh, an additional clerk was appointed to reside and keep the records of both the circuit and district courts at Wilmington.

In 1905, under an act approved March 3, provision was made for clerks at New Bern and Elizabeth City to act as clerks of both the circuit and district courts.³⁴ Under an act approved on the same day, provision was made for two terms yearly of the circuit and district courts for the Eastern District at Washington, to continue until business was disposed of, provided the city furnished quarters for the court.³⁵ At his discretion, the clerk of the circuit and district courts at Raleigh could either act as clerk at Washington or request the courts to appoint a resident deputy clerk. In 1907 Congress gave the judge of the circuit and district court in term the privilege of appointing a resident clerk of both courts.³⁶ In 1912 a deputy clerk's office was established at Washington.

When the inventory was taken the Federal courts were operating in North Carolina under the reorganization act of March 3, 1911,³⁷ as amended. This act, effective January 1, 1912, divided North Carolina as before into two districts. District court was held as heretofore twice yearly for the Eastern District at Raleigh, Elizabeth City, New Bern, Wilmington, and Washington, provided the latter city furnished free quarters until a courthouse should be constructed by the Government. A district clerk, with office at Raleigh, maintained offices in charge of deputies at Wilmington, New Bern, Elizabeth City, and Washington. In the Western District, court was held twice yearly at Greensboro, Salisbury, Asheville, Statesville, Charlotte, and Wilkesboro. A district clerk, with office at Greensboro, maintained offices in charge of deputies at Asheville, Statesville, and Wilkesboro.

Under the same act North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and South Carolina constituted the Fourth Circuit. Circuit court was abolished and the district court was vested with original jurisdiction to hear and determine all causes heretofore cognizable in the circuit court. Records of the latter court were placed in custody of district clerks. Two circuit judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals were appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate to reside and hold court in the Fourth Circuit. Sessions of this court were held in Asheville at the discretion of the senior circuit justice until 1916 when, by an act approved July 17,³⁸ provision was made for an annual term of the latter court at Asheville at a time to be fixed by the judges. No records of the Circuit Court of Appeals, established by act of March 3, 1891, had been kept in North Carolina and no records of this court are now in the state; all its records are kept by its clerk in Richmond, Va., and are transferred to Asheville only when the court is in session there.

Between 1912 and 1927 provision was made for additional sessions of the district court, the district clerk to maintain in each instance an office in charge of himself or deputy, as follows:

At Laurinburg and Wilson in the Eastern District, under an act approved October 7, 1914, two terms yearly, provided free quarters were furnished for the court.³⁹ A deputy clerk's office was established at Wilson on July 1, 1929. No provision was made, however, for terms of the court at Laurinburg in a law approved June 7, 1924. The Laurinburg division was consequently abolished and records were transferred to a newly established office at Fayetteville.

At Raleigh, under an act approved April 27, 1916, two additional terms of the district court for the Eastern District for the trial of civil cases.⁴⁰ This act was repealed on March 17, 1920 by an act which itself made provision for the two sessions.⁴¹ In 1926, in an act approved June 22, provision was made for one two-week civil term instead of the two terms yearly.⁴² On May 10, 1928 other terms were abolished in favor of two one-week civil terms and two criminal terms only.⁴³

At Fayetteville in the Eastern District, under an act approved June 7, 1924, two terms yearly, provided Fayetteville furnished free quarters for the court until a Federal building was erected.⁴⁴ Records of the Laurinburg division, abolished in 1924, were transferred to Fayetteville.

At Shelby in the Western District, under an act approved December 24, 1924, two sessions yearly, provided the town furnished quarters for the court.⁴⁵

At Winston-Salem in the Western District, under an act approved June 12, 1926, two sessions yearly, provided the town furnished quarters for the court.⁴⁶

By an amendment to the reorganization act, approved March 21, 1927,⁴⁷ Congress divided North Carolina into three districts, the Eastern,⁴⁸

Middle,⁴⁹ and Western⁵⁰ Districts of North Carolina. Sessions of the district court for the Eastern District were to be held as before at Raleigh, Elizabeth City, Washington, New Bern, Fayetteville, and Wilmington, and at Wilson provided free quarters were furnished. The district clerk was to be responsible for offices at each place in charge of himself or deputy. A district judge and other officers were to be appointed for the Middle District and two terms of the district court were to be held yearly at Greensboro, Salisbury, and Wilkesboro, and at Winston-Salem and Rockingham provided the two towns furnished quarters.⁵¹ The district clerk was to be responsible for offices in charge of himself or deputy at Greensboro, Rockingham, Winston-Salem, Wilkesboro, and Salisbury. In the Western District terms of the district court were to be held yearly at Asheville, Charlotte, and Statesville, and at Shelby if this town furnished free quarters. The district clerk at Asheville was to be responsible for offices at each place in charge of himself or deputy. All causes in the Middle District in equity, bankruptcy, or admiralty in which orders and decrees had already been made and which were in process of trial were to be continued subject to the jurisdiction of the trial judge. Thereafter headquarters for the three districts were located at Raleigh, Greensboro, and Asheville.

Between 1927 and 1936 the following changes were made:

An act approved April 25, 1928 provided for two sessions yearly of the district court for the Western District at Bryson City, provided Bryson City furnished quarters for the court.⁵² The district clerk was made responsible for maintenance of an office.

Effective July 1, 1928, two terms yearly of the district court for the Eastern District were provided for Durham, if the city furnished quarters.⁵³ In 1935 Durham County was transferred to the Middle District,⁵⁴ and under a law approved June 24, 1936 the district court for the Middle District met thereafter twice yearly in Durham.⁵⁵

Scotland County was transferred from the Eastern to the Middle District by an act of August 17, 1937.⁵⁶

The practice as to maintenance of records varies in each of the three districts. In the Eastern District the records are accumulated at the various court seats. The bulk of them are located at Raleigh, Wilmington, Elizabeth City, and New Bern. In the Middle District, records are centralized in Greensboro, those pertaining to cases in other divisions within the district being temporarily removed to the respective division seat in which the court is holding session. There are part-time deputy clerks, however, at Salisbury and at Winston-Salem. When the Survey was made the records of the Wilkesboro court were filed partly in Greensboro and partly in Wilkesboro. Records of the old Western District of 1872-1927 are in Greensboro. In the Western District records are accumulated at Asheville, Charlotte, and Statesville. Records of the Shelby court are kept at Charlotte, and those of the Bryson City court at Asheville. When the Survey was made, with the exception of a card record of pending civil cases which dated from 1895, no records at Asheville were dated prior to 1918. The oldest records in the Western District were found at Charlotte, dating from 1878. District court records at Statesville were not surveyed, but records of the old circuit court at Statesville are included in the inventory.

The two annual sessions of the circuit court for the North Carolina District were moved after the session of June 1, 1793 from New Bern to Wake Court House, where the November 1793 term was held. Thereafter until 1872, except from 1861 to 1867, when sessions of this court were discontinued, circuit court for the District of North Carolina met in Raleigh. After 1872, when Raleigh became the court seat of the Eastern District, two sessions yearly of the circuit court for the Eastern District were held in Raleigh. When the circuit court was abolished in 1912 the records in Raleigh were placed in the custody of the district clerk.

A unit of the district court was not established in Raleigh until 1894, when Person, Durham, Chatham, Moore, and Richmond Counties were transferred from the Western to the Eastern District and provision was made for two yearly sessions of the district court at Raleigh. Causes pending involving residents of these counties were transferred, upon the application of either party, to the court at Raleigh, together with all papers in each case and copies of all record entries. When various counties were transferred from the Eastern District in 1927 to the Middle District all causes pending in the district court at Raleigh in the counties so transferred were continued before the trial judge. In 1916, in addition to the two yearly sessions of the court already established, two additional terms were provided for the trial of civil cases. In 1926 one two-week civil term was substituted for the two yearly terms, and in 1928 all other terms were abolished in favor of two one-week civil terms and two criminal terms only. When the inventory was taken in 1936 the Raleigh division of the Eastern District was composed of Franklin, Granville, Johnston, Vance, Wake, Warren, and Wayne Counties.

The office of clerk of the circuit court of the North Carolina District was probably established in Raleigh not later than 1801, at which time Congress stipulated that records of the court were to be kept in Raleigh by a clerk appointed by the court. From 1887 to 1902 this clerk was responsible for records of the circuit court at Wilmington, and from 1900 to 1905 for those of the circuit court at New Bern and Elizabeth City. After 1894, when sessions of the district court were established at Raleigh, one clerk served both the circuit and district courts. Since 1912 the clerk of the district court for the Eastern District, resident at Raleigh, has appointed resident deputy clerks to serve at the court seats of the various divisions of the Eastern District.

Prior to the War Between the States sessions of the court were held in the Wake County Courthouse, a frame building erected in Raleigh in 1793 and replaced in 1837 by a brick courthouse. After the war sessions were held in the Senate Chamber of the State Capitol Building until October 1, 1877, when the court was moved to quarters in the Federal Building. Useless papers are stored.

Subsequent to the Survey, some of the records in the attic which were not in permanent containers were burned, some (miscellaneous records, 1791-1913, 6 ft.) were forwarded to The National Archives, and some were released to the North Carolina Historical Commission, where they were resurveyed. The last-mentioned records are included both below and under a separate heading following this section.

Records in Custody of the North Carolina Historical Commission

The following entries cover records which were first surveyed while stored in the attic of the Federal Building and which are included in the preceding inventory of the district clerk's records. Subsequent to the Survey, some of the stored records which were not in permanent containers were sent to The National Archives (miscellaneous records, 1791-1913, 6 ft.), some were burned, and some were released to the North Carolina Historical Commission, where they were resurveyed. The following inventory necessarily duplicates in part the preceding, original inventory of the district clerk's records. Witness and jurors' tickets (entries nos. 154, 157) and reports on violation of the 28-hour law (entry no. 159) are arranged alphabetically; other serials are arranged chronologically. All of the records are brittle and dirty. The records have been filed for public use in Room Archives E.

ELIZABETH CITY

Deputy Clerk
Post Office Bldg., E. Main St.

The office of clerk for the Albemarle District was moved to Elizabeth City when sessions of the court were transferred from Edenton to Elizabeth City in accordance with an act of Congress approved July 1, 1870. When the state was divided into two districts in 1872 and provision was made for two sessions yearly of the district court for the Eastern District at Elizabeth City, the office was transferred to a resident clerk of the Elizabeth City division. In 1900, when terms of the circuit court for the Eastern District were established at Elizabeth City at the times fixed by law for holding the district court, the circuit court clerk at Raleigh was made responsible for records of the circuit court in Elizabeth City, but in 1905 provision was made for a resident clerk who should keep the records of both the district and circuit courts. The office was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the old Eastern District court in 1912. Since 1927, when the state was divided into three districts, the office has been in charge of a resident deputy clerk of the Eastern District court. When the inventory was taken, the Elizabeth City division of the Eastern District was composed of Currituck, Perquimans, Hertford, Camden, Chowan, Dare, Pasquotank, Gates, and Tyrrell Counties.

The office was located in the Pasquotank County Courthouse until 1902, and thereafter at its present location. The survey indicated that certain records had been lost or misplaced, but information was not obtainable as to the time or cause.

FAYETTEVILLE

Deputy Clerk

Cumberland County Courthouse
Gillespie and Franklin Sts.

The office of deputy clerk was established in Fayetteville in 1924 when provision was made for two terms yearly of the district court for the Eastern District if the city furnished at its own expense a suitable place for holding court until a courthouse could be constructed by the Government. Books and records of the Laurinburg division, which was abolished in 1924, were transferred to Fayetteville. When the inventory was taken, the Fayetteville division of the Eastern District was composed of Robeson, Cumberland, Harnett, and Scotland Counties. The latter county was transferred to the Rockingham division of the Middle District in August 1937.

NEW BERN

Deputy Clerk

Post Office Bldg., New and Middle Sts.

The office of district clerk for the North Carolina District was established in New Bern in 1790. District court met in New Bern October 4, 1790 and continued to meet four times yearly only in New Bern until 1792 when Congress ordered court to meet at New Bern, Wilmington, and Edenton in rotation. When the state was divided into three districts in 1794 New Bern became the court seat of the District of New Bern. In 1797 all sessions of the district court were returned to New Bern and all cases pending in Wilmington and Edenton were continued to the next court at New Bern. Dockets and records of the court at each of the above places were the responsibility of the North Carolina district clerk. In 1801 New Bern was made the court seat of the District of Pamlico. Regular sessions of the district court were thereafter to be held three times yearly at New Bern and provision was made for a clerk who should reside and keep the records in New Bern. In 1812 Congress provided for two terms of the court yearly, instead of three as heretofore.

Circuit court was held in New Bern from November 1791 to June 1793 when sessions were moved to Wake Court House and then to Raleigh. In 1900 provision was made for sessions of the circuit court for the Eastern District in New Bern at the same time as those of the district court. Until 1905 the clerk of the circuit court in Raleigh was responsible for circuit court records in New Bern; but from 1905 to 1911 the clerk at New Bern served as clerk of both courts.

In 1912, when the state was divided into three districts, the office was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the Eastern District court. When the inventory was taken the New Bern division comprised the counties of Craven, Lenoir, Pamlico, Jones, Carteret, Greene, and Onslow.

A session of the Confederate court was held in New Bern in July 1861 and the court was under control of the Confederate States for the duration of the war. (See entries nos. 274, 277, 278, 294, 317, 318.)

From 1790 to 1861 the clerk's office was located in the county courthouse, from 1862 to 1870 in the McLain Building, from 1879 to 1898 in Stanley Hall, and from 1898 to 1935 in the old Post Office Building. Since 1935 it has been located in the new Post Office Building. Though an office has been continuously located in New Bern since 1790, it would appear that many records have been destroyed, lost, or transferred. No serial shows an earlier date than 1839, and less than one-third of the serials are dated prior to 1900.

WASHINGTON

Deputy Clerk

Post Office Bldg., Market and Second Sts.

A unit of the circuit and district court for the Eastern District of North Carolina was established at Washington in 1905 and an office was opened July 18 of that year. Prior to 1907 the clerk of the circuit and district courts at Raleigh could at his discretion act as clerk of the two courts at Washington or apply for appointment of a deputy clerk resident at Washington. In March 1907 provision was made for appointment by the judge of the district or circuit court in term of a clerk who should reside at Washington and keep the records of both courts. In 1912, when the state was divided into three districts, the office was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the Eastern District court. When the inventory was taken the Washington division comprised the counties of Beaufort, Washington, Hyde, Pitt, Martin, and Bertie. The office was located in the Beaufort County Courthouse until 1913 when it was moved to its present location.

WILMINGTON

Deputy Clerk
Custom House, 1 Market St.

From 1792, when provision was first made for sessions at Wilmington of the district court for the North Carolina District, to 1797 the district clerk was responsible for records at Wilmington. When sessions of the district court were returned to New Bern in 1797, cases pending in Wilmington were continued to the next term of court at New Bern. In 1801, when Wilmington became the court seat of the Cape Fear District, provision was made for a clerk who should reside and keep the records at Wilmington.

Survey workers reported, however, that the office of district clerk was not established in Wilmington until about 1818. From 1801 to 1812 regular sessions of the district court were held three times annually at Wilmington. In 1812 Congress made provision for two terms yearly. After the state was divided into two districts in 1872 two sessions yearly of the district court for the Eastern District were held at Wilmington. When sessions of the circuit court for the Eastern District of North Carolina were established at Wilmington in 1887, at the time set for meetings of the district court, the clerk of the circuit court at Raleigh was made responsible for the records. In 1902, however, provision was made for appointment of a resident clerk who should act as clerk of both the district and circuit courts at Wilmington and who should have custody and control of records. Since 1912, when the circuit court was abolished, the office has been in charge of a deputy clerk of the Eastern District court. When the inventory was taken the Wilmington division was composed of New Hanover, Sampson, Pender, Columbus, Bladen, Duplin, and Brunswick Counties.

Confederate district court was held in Wilmington and removed to Salisbury during the War Between the States, and certain Confederate court records are in this office. (See entries nos. 380, 408, 432.)

Prior to 1846 the deputy clerk's office was located in the New Hanover County Courthouse. From 1846 to 1891 it was located in the Custom House. In 1891 it was moved to the Post Office Building, where it remained until 1916, when it was moved to permanent quarters in the Custom House.

MIDDLE DISTRICT

GREENSBORO

Clerk

Post Office and Federal Court Bldg.
W. Market, Eugene, and W. Gaston Sts.

The office of court clerk was established in Greensboro in 1872 when the state was divided into two districts. At that time Congress provided for two sessions yearly of the district and circuit courts at Greensboro and for appointment of a resident clerk who should keep the records of both courts. In 1912 the office of district clerk was established in Greensboro. Prior to 1927 many of the records of the old Western District were accumulated in Greensboro, where they are still located. When the state was divided into three districts in 1927 Greensboro became the court seat of the newly created Middle District. Pending causes were continued before the trial judge. The office was located in the old Post Office and Federal Court Building, Elm and Market Streets, from 1872 to July 1933, when it was moved to its present location. Records of the five divisions of the district are kept in Greensboro except when court is in session in a division, when records for the respective divisions are transferred to the court seat of the division. When the inventory was taken, however, approximately one-half of the Wilkesboro records were in the Wilkesboro office. The Greensboro division comprised the counties of Alamance,

Chatham, Lee, Rockingham, Caswell, Guilford, and Randolph.

In the following inventory many series contain both circuit and district court records. A few old papers, said to have been of no value, were destroyed by fire in 1928. All papers are preserved.

When the Federal courts were reorganized in 1912 records of the court at Salisbury were placed in charge of the district clerk at Greensboro. In 1927, when the state was divided into three districts, Salisbury was placed in the Middle District. When the inventory was taken, the Salisbury division comprised Cabarrus, Davidson, Rowan, Stanly, and Davie Counties.

WILKESBORO

Post Office Bldg.

Under an act of February 23, 1903 provision was made for two meetings yearly of the district and circuit courts for the Western District at Wilkesboro, records to be kept by a resident deputy clerk appointed by the clerk of court at Statesville. In April 1904 Congress provided for appointment by the circuit and district judges of a clerk of court who should reside and have office at Wilkesboro and serve as clerk of both courts. When the circuit court was abolished in 1912, the office in Wilkesboro was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the Western District court. Since 1927 Wilkesboro has been the court seat of a division of the Middle District, comprising Alleghany, Watauga, Ashe, and Wilkes Counties.

The Greensboro section should be consulted for additional records of this office.

WESTERN DISTRICT

ASHEVILLE

Clerk

Post Office and Courthouse
Post and Otis Sts.

The office of district clerk of the Western District was established in Asheville in March 1927 when North Carolina was divided into three judicial districts and Asheville became the court seat of the Western District. The district clerk occupied an office in the old Post Office Building until 1930, when his office was moved to its present location.

Though this office is of recent date Federal court has been meeting in Asheville since 1872 when the state was divided into two districts and provision was made for two sessions yearly in Asheville of the circuit and district courts for the Western District of North Carolina, one resident clerk who should keep the records of both courts to have office in Asheville. Very few records prior to 1927 are in the files, however, since accumulated records of the old Western District were not transferred to this office from Greensboro. When the inventory was taken the Asheville division comprised the counties of Buncombe, Henderson, Polk, McDowell, Yancey, Mitchell, Avery, Haywood, Madison, and Transylvania. Records for the Bryson City division are kept in this office.

BRYSON CITY

Bryson City Division District Court Records

Records for the Bryson City division are kept at Asheville (see entries nos. 653, 655, 656) except when district court is in session at Bryson City. Sessions of the district court at Bryson City were first authorized in 1928. When the inventory was taken the Bryson City division was composed of Jackson, Swain, Macon, Graham, Cherokee, and Clay Counties.

CHARLOTTE

Post Office Bldg., 401 W. Trade St.

Provision was first made by act of June 19, 1878 for two annual sessions at Charlotte of the district and circuit courts for the old Western District. For an undetermined number of years the clerk of court at Statesville was clerk of both courts at Charlotte. When the circuit court was consolidated with the district court, the office was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the Western District court. In 1927, when the state was divided into three districts, provision was made for two sessions yearly at Charlotte of the district court for the new Western District. When the inventory was taken, the Charlotte division was composed of Mecklenburg, Union, and Anson Counties and that part of Gaston County which lies east from Gastonia. The office was temporarily located in the Mecklenburg County Courthouse from November 1932 to August 1934 while the Federal Building was under construction. Shelby records are also kept in this office, but as the Charlotte-Shelby records were docketed numerically together in the same books they were not surveyed separately.

STATESVILLE

Deputy Clerk

Post Office Bldg., Front and Center Sts.

With the exception of certain old records which at the time of the Survey were stored in the old Post Office Building the records of this office, which is located in the new Federal Building, were not surveyed.

The office of clerk of court was established at Statesville after the state was divided into two districts under the act of June 4, 1872 when provision was made for two terms yearly at Statesville of the circuit and district courts for the old Western District and the appointment of three clerks, one of whom should reside and keep the records of both courts at Statesville. Under the reorganization in 1912 and in 1927 the office at Statesville was placed in charge of a deputy clerk of the Western District court. When the inventory was taken the Statesville division was composed of Iredell, Caldwell, Catawba, and Alexander Counties and that portion of Burke County which lay north of the Southern Railroad.

Prior to 1912 the clerk at Statesville was clerk of both courts at Charlotte and Salisbury, and at Wilkesboro for several years after the establishment of a unit of the court at that place.
